2025 Cordyline Rosé

The Vintage

The 2025 vintage in Paso Robles was a cooler, slower, and thankfully, without many weather extremes vintage. A mild summer allowed the grapes to take their time on the vine, developing flavor while holding onto their natural acidity. This led to a long, unhurried harvest, with fruit coming in over a longer period of time. The result? Wines with freshness, balance, vibrant fruit, and plenty of character. This is a very promising vintage.

The Vineyard

The fruit is harvested from the Jhelum Vineyard located in the Creston District. The region is punctuated with mountainous hills covered with trees. Formerly known as Herder Vineyard, the Jhelum estate was acquired by Vahali Vineyards in 2017.

Tasting Notes

Our 2025 dry Rosé delights with a pale salmon hue and vibrant, mouthwatering acidity. Bursting with aromas of Bing cherry and delicate white flowers, this light-bodied wine is refreshingly crisp and aromatic. Its lively personality and elegant balance make it a standout sipper that can easily convert even the staunchest rosé skeptics into true believers. Perfect for warm days and easy enjoyment.
